Health Tip: Questions regarding medications?

Have you ever received a prescription from your doctor, only to leave the office and realize that you have questions that you forgot to ask, or that the doctor neglected to tell you? Are you experiencing a symptom that you think could be caused by one of your medications or to an interaction between medications? Beginning this week, eDocAmerica is excited to offer a new service to its clients that will serve as a resource for medication-related questions.

By clicking on the Ask ePharm icon, your questions will be referred to Dr. Eric Schneider, an expert in Pharmacy and Pharmacotherapy.

Dr. Eric F. Schneider

Dr. Schneider can be considered to be a Pharmacist "on steroids" (excuse the medication-related analogy). He is not only a Pharmacist, but he also holds a doctorate degree (PharmD) in Pharmacy from the Medical University of South Carolina and is certified by the Board of Pharmaceutical Specialties as a Board Certified Pharmacotherapy Specialist. This means that his qualifications and expertise go far beyond that of a dispensing Pharmacist.

Dr. Schneider include:

- What benefits can I expect to receive from taking this medication?
- What are the potential side effects of taking a particular medication?
- Is there a risk of an interaction from taking this combination of medications?
- Is there a better medication to take for a particular condition than the one that I am on?
- What is the most appropriate dosage or duration of treatment with this medication?
- Is there an alternative medication to the one that I am taking that is less expensive or associated with fewer side effects?
- What is the best way to monitor this medication to avoid complications?

I worked with Dr. Schneider for a number of years while on the faculty of the Department of Family Medicine at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences. I was continually impressed with his vast wealth of knowledge regarding medications, both their uses and their side effects. He takes a highly scientific approach to medications, basing his recommendations on the best studies available from the medical literature. He is cost-conscious and practical in his approach to medication usage and understands that there are risks as well as benefits to keep in mind whenever use of a medication is being considered.

Let us help you with your medication-related issues. You'll find the link to Ask ePharm alongside the Ask eDoc and Ask ePsych icons.

We welcome Dr. Schneider and ePharm into the eDocAmerica family of health-care services, and hope that you take advantage of this valuable resource.
